

DRAMA, DIRECTION AND DESIGN

Over the past couple of decades, North Carolina has become a hot spot for film and television production. Brooks Pierce attorneys have developed a niche for counseling and representing professionals in the film and television industries. Our clients include actors, producers, production companies, writers, and agents.

Our services include:

Project counsel – we draft and negotiate agreements between producers, actors, agents, and production companies, such as content licenses, option agreements and non-disclosure agreements. We also assist production companies and filmmakers with business formation, project financing, and protection of project ideas.

Litigation – we represent our clients in disputes along a wide range of matters, including breach of contract, intellectual property, and rights of use disputes, among others.

Lobbying – we represent filmmakers and television producers before state and federal legislature. We also draft legislation and regulations, and appear before rulemaking and administrative proceedings regarding the film and television industries.