
Raleigh was established as the capital city of North Carolina over two hundred years ago. The North Carolina Legislature and the North Carolina Supreme Court both sit here. The firm's offices are in the Wells Fargo Capitol Center, and look out over the grounds of the North Carolina State Capitol.

The City is located just minutes from Research Triangle Park, the nation's largest planned research and development park. A number of nationally recognized companies maintain substantial presences in RTP, including Bayer, GlaxoSmithKline, IBM, Cisco, Credit Suisse, and BASF.

Wake County is home to the North Carolina Museums of History, Art and Natural Sciences, and a variety of cultural and recreational opportunities including 49 major parks, three professional sports teams and seven colleges and universities. The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University, and North Carolina State University are close by, and form a part of the Triangle area consisting of Raleigh, Durham, and Chapel Hill. The North Carolina coast and the Blue Ridge Mountains are within easy driving distance.

The population of Raleigh and Wake County has grown rapidly over recent years, and the area is now home to more than 500,000 residents.
