PROTECTING WHAT'S IMPORTANT

Insurance, whether it's for home, car, health, or life, is meant to offer protection against risk. But who protects the insurance providers? Brooks Pierce has years of experience representing insurers in a variety of different matters, both in and out of court. Our clients are among the largest insurance companies in the country, and offer every kind of coverage: homeowners, automobile, disability, health, and life.

Our services include:

Corporate counsel – we provide general corporate advice to insurance companies on issues such as corporate governance, purchase and sale of interests, mergers and acquisitions, and corporate finance.

Employment – we help insurers develop handbooks and policies for employees, settle employment disputes, and draft confidentiality and non-compete agreements.

Litigation – we represent our clients in dispute resolution matters both in and out of court. Our experience includes handling matters regarding breaches of contract between employers and agents, litigating coverage issues, defending insurers in personal injury cases, and defending against claims of bad faith or unfair trade practices.
