MY PRACTICE

ENVIRONMENTAL LAW

Bill led the North Carolina Department of Environment and Natural Resources as the agency's secretary from 2001-2009. The department in those years included 27 different divisions (environmental, natural resources, educational, and administrative), managed an annual budget of approximately $1 billion, and had 4,000 permanent and 2,300 seasonal employees. In addition, Bill was director of legal affairs for the agency from 1979-1984. Having returned to Brooks Pierce in 2009 where he had previously (1984-2001) helped to develop the firm's environmental practice, Bill now focuses as a lawyer and consultant on projects, cases and initiatives in environmental law, environmental health, natural resource conservation, military readiness, and sustainability.

In 2017, he served briefly as acting secretary of the North Carolina Department of Environmental Quality. In so doing, he became both the longest and shortest serving secretary of the department.

Bill served as a visiting professor in environmental science and policy at the Duke University Nicholas School of the Environment from 2010-2014.

NATURAL RESOURCES LAW

Bill is a consultant through Texas A&M University to the Readiness and Environmental Protection Integration (REPI) program at the U.S. Department of Defense and through North Carolina State University to the NC Sentinel Landscapes Partnership. Both programs seek to advance multiple interests (including working lands, conservation, and national defense) through innovation and collaboration.
