

Prak Presents Appellate Practice CLE

October 13, 2011

Mark's presentation was part of the "Improving Your Appellate Practice: Gateway to Specialization" program which focused on preparing attorneys for the new appellate practice specialization exam.

Mark has served as lead counsel in litigation of numerous cases in state and federal courts and before administrative agencies. The subject matter of his litigation experience has ranged from copyright, trademark, and service mark issues to breach of contract, unfair competition, unfair trade practices, non-competition and trade secret agreements, libel, invasion of privacy, wiretapping, labor and employment questions (Title VII, wage and hour, etc.), open meetings, public records and freedom of information questions, as well as corporate and insurance law issues. He has also represented corporations and educational institutions before the FCC and North Carolina Utilities Commission in administrative litigation.
